Join us for Raptor Rendezvous at Carters Lake

Elijay, GA — 9/23/26 — At Carters Lake, the deepest lake in Georgia, a thriving ecosystem flourishes in the water and along the forested shores. High above the water, the surrounding skies hold an equally captivating spectacle: the soaring presence of Georgia's birds of prey.

More than 130 species of birds call Northeast Georgia home, including 25 raptors, carnivorous birds that play a vital role in balancing our ecosystems. Though often seen at a distance, it's a rare opportunity to stand eye-to-eye with these remarkable hunters. That's why FIND Outdoors is thrilled to welcome Georgia Mountain Falconry to Northbank Park at Carters Lake on Saturday, October 3rd for Raptor Rendezvous, a live demonstration that brings eagles, owls, hawks, falcons, and some surprise guests within arm's reach. Visitors will learn about the ancient art of falconry still in practice today, as well as how these powerful birds contribute to our forest's health.

Raptor Rendezvous is made possible by the generous support from Safari LTD.

This event is free with the cost of admission to Northbank Park and runs from 10:00 AM to 4:00 PM. Guests are encouraged to bring their cameras, curiosity, and sense of wonder, but please, no pets. Northbank Park is located at 1850 Carters Dam Rd, Chatsworth, GA 30705. This is also the location of the Astronomy Field.
